The Arnold is widely known as the largest multi-discipline sporting event in the world, attracting over 100,000 attendees to Columbus, Ohio, annually. The event, which pays homage to Arnold Schwarzenegger, has evolved from a body-building show in 1989 into the mecca of the fitness industry today.

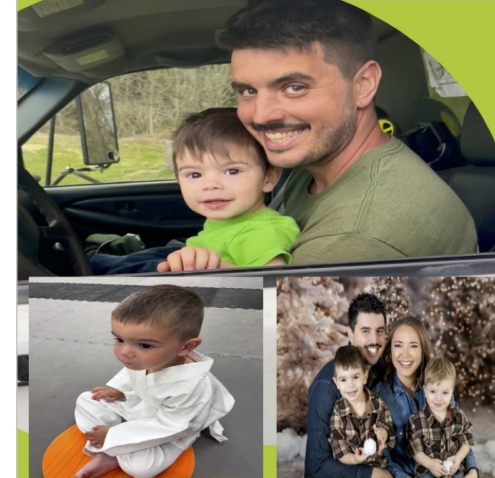

The Kumite Classic is poised to present a new generation of martial arts competitions, with USA Kickboxing as the anchor competition at the Ohio Expo Center. The weekend will feature WAKO Nationals, Team Trials, and WAKO USA State Games, showcasing sport karate, taekwondo, tang soo do, kung fu, and a wide variety of combat sports. Competitions will be open to all ranks and ages—novice, intermediate, advanced, and black belt—across multiple categories, including weapons, forms, point sparring, continuous sparring, and more.

USA Kickboxing is the only U.S. organization in the sport of kickboxing to have recognition from both the IOC (International Olympic Committee) and the AOC (American Olympic Committee). Today, WAKO is solidified in 130 affiliated nations across five continents, with 105 of them officially recognized by either their National Olympic Committee or relevant National Government Sports Authority. WAKO is your pathway to the Olympics.
